ABSTRACT

In this article the problems which appear during the language learning process are shown and some useful advices are given. These advices can be used during the teaching process. It is difficult to learn foreign language if there is no language environment so it is essential to create it. To create interesting lessons for the students, teacher should use some new technology and different methods.

Introduction:

Most people are eager to learn foreign languages especially English, but it needs power and strong will. It is easy to learn language if we have language environment, moreover in order to learn language one should listen to the language as much as possible. First of all a person who wants to study language should identify why he or she need this language, then put aim or goal. To succeed in study the student should have self-confidence. I am a teacher of English and during my work,

I came across with a lot of problems so I am looking for the way to deal with the problem. Students mustn't study only to get diploma but also to get qualification and to become an excellent specialist.

As a teacher, I try to motivate my students by different ways, eg. creating interesting activities, role-plays. Successful studying depends on persons efforts; they should make their study into enjoyable business and result into reward. We have intrinsic and extrinsic motivation. To deal with the problem, which appear while we are learning we are to create enjoyable activity. Time, management is very important when somebody begin studying. Being a good manager of the time is a good step to achievement. In order to speak language correctly student should know grammar rules and it is difficult to adopt other language structure, to avoid such kind of situation we teach grammar in context. Adverbs such as yesterday, next week, recently etc. can show what tense we should use. Students can read the context repeatedly to remember grammatical structure of the sentence. First we give them form of the tense then we read texts related to that tense.

Besides grammar challenge, we have pronunciation challenge also. Some teachers think that it is less important but wrong pronunciation makes the speech misundestandable. For beginners it is important to work at the pronunciation: intonation, stress, sounds. English language has a wide intonation range and students should acquire it through communication, practicing dialogues.

The third challenge is vocabulary, which is very important, to teach the vocabulary we use context, reading materials, authentic materials, listening is also helpful. In this process, we focus on the meaning than the form but word formation is also important: prefixes, suffixes etc. Here we should know at what level what words should be taught, some words must be discovered by the reader while we are planning our lesson we should take these into consideration. Making teaching grammar, vocabulary, pronunciation enjoyable, we should create teacher student relationship. Comfortable learning environment must be organized. Learners should believe that they are in the way of progress. In some cases, students may have their own problems connected with their family or with their work may be with the friends teachers should be sympathetic and reassuring. We mustn't kill self-confident of the students but should encourage them in any way. To succeed in any business we need motivation. Motivation is the key point especially in study. Learning other language is a very difficult thing so intrinsic and extrinsic motivation is very essential. Intrinsic motivation is when you motivate yourself by the result of your work eg. your success your achievements your knowledge .It can forces you to work better and better. I think extrinsic motivation is stronger because human beings always think about others opinions.

I began to think that motivate students in our lessons will give its fruits, by this way we can gain big results .From my prospective without motivation any job willnot be effectively done. If learning of other language is difficult students may give up we shouldn't ignore them but try to encourage them by motivation. Different people have different ways of learning some of them like to be motivated all the time but some of them don't want to be in the middle of attention so we should find right approach to each of them. Some students no matter how they are motivated they feel that they cannot do this task in this case what we should do ,we try to explain the role of task in gaining knowledge. While studying time management is so important we should direct our students to distribute their time perfectly. In this process putting goal is very important and putting deadline is also essential, if you put deadline and do your best to fulfill this goal you will achieve it and it will be great motivation for yourself. If you cannot manage to do it in time try do it next day but never give up because every day work is the short term goal and it brings to the long term goal.

Each step should be implemented in this case you will feel satisfaction and this is motivation I think. "Knowledgeable people are higher than people who didn't get education" said StiffJob. This quote is also some kind of motivation to study. We should devote ourselves to our work only in this case we can achieve success. While achieving the goal it is right way to establish timetable it helps us to manage the time. We should be very optimistic. Motivation in classes are very important as I have mentioned before so teachers should search different ways of encouragement may be by the words may be by the marks may be by the score. Without motivation there is no result. Studying in this course gave me self-confident and encouraged me to create new ways of motivation because I realized the importance of it.

Is there any place for teaching grammar in a formal manner? Give reasons for your answer and include a discussion of what you mean by 'a formal manner'.

I think there are different ways to teach grammar but in a formal manner means to teach it by the traditional method if I am not mistaken.

Grammar is a very important part in language teaching but some people think that it is boring activity and while speaking if it is being thought learners can understand it themselves. But in reality it is very crucial. While achieving the goal it is right way to establish timetable it helps us to manage the time. We should be very optimistic. Educated person should express ideas in the formal way it means sophisticated language structure should be used.
